The health of our community's population continues to be of paramount importance. Across the nation, moving upstream is recognized as vital to health outcomes. Living conditions and root cause factors, generally referred to as social determinants of health are taking center stage. The January 2020 conference speakers are exceptional pioneers who are providing unprecedented leadership and innovation in upstream health efforts, routinely breaking the mold of past approaches. Their broad information and substantial experience routinely transform thinking and drive action while maintaining quality and positive care experiences.

Additional collaborating and contributing sponsors to be announced.
